MRS. CLEVELAND IS BACK FROM EUROPE

WIDOW OF FORMER PRESIDENT REPORTED AS LOOKING AND FEELING VERY WELL

NEW YORK, June 3.—Mrs. Grover Cleveland, with three daughters and one son, returned from an eight months' stay in Europe yesterday and left the Hoboken pier, where the North German Lloyd steamship George Washington docked, on E. C. Benedict's yacht Onida for the latter's home in Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. Cleveland looked extremely well and declared she was in the best of health. Her daughter Esther, now about eighteen years old, showed a greater change than any of the other children. Her stay in Europe has made it plain she is no longer a child, but a young woman. The other children, Frances Grover, Marjorie and Richard Folsom, also appeared well.

"We have spent the winter in Lausanne, Switzerland," said Mrs. Cleveland. "I was anxious to have the children well grounded in French and the only way to do that is to live among French people."

"I believe that with the next generation the knowledge of French will be of increased importance. I chose Lausanne as it has good schools and is a delightful place. The children had a good time. The rest of their education will be continued in this country, but exactly where has not been decided."

"I presume eventually, Richard will go to Princeton. No, I cannot tell what he is going to be when he grows up. I asked him the other day, and he said he had not made up his mind. We will spend the summer in our home in New Hampshire. Beyond that our plans are not made."

Speak For Yourself, John.

The Lord Leicester of a century ago had no sons by his first marriage and, being well on in years, was anxious to see his heir apparent, a nephew, happily wedded. His wish was that a charming daughter of his neighbor, the Earl of Albemarle, should be the future Lady Leicester. With her and her sisters he used to enjoy his morning rides. One morning she came alone, and during the ride he asked, thinking to forward his nephew's interests, "Anne, my dear, how should you like to be mistress of Holkham?" "There is nothing I should like better," she replied. "Then I shall send my nephew William to court you," said the earl, glad that the fates seemed to favor his project. But the lady calmly and gravely answered, "I shall never be mistress of Holkham on those terms." "Why," exclaimed the astonished old gentleman, looking the lady hard in the face, "you don't mean to say you would marry me?" "Yes, indeed I would," was the answer, "and nothing I should like better." And as a consequence the nephew did not succeed to the earldom.—London Chronicle.

Perseverance. Timor, the great Asiatic conqueror, commonly known by the name of Tamir, had extraordinary perseverance. No difficulties ever led him to revoke from what he had once undertaken, and he often persisted in his efforts under circumstances which led all around him to despair. On such occasions he used to relate to his friend an anecdote of his early life. "I once," he said, "was forced to take shelter from my enemies in a ruined building, where I sat alone many hours. Desiring to divert my mind from my hopeless condition, I fixed my eyes on an ant that was carrying a grain of corn larger than itself up a high wall. I numbered the efforts it made to accomplish this object. The grain fell sixty-nine times to the ground, but the insect persevered, and the seventieth time it reached the top. This sight gave me courage at the moment, and I never forgot the lesson."

The Landscape Near Jerusalem. The country about Jerusalem is essentially a pale country. Indeed, I often thought it looked stricken, as if its pallor had come upon it abruptly, had been sent to it as a visitation. I was not sorry that I saw it first under grayness and swept by winds. The grayness, the winds, seemed to me to emphasize its truth, to drive home its reality. And there was something noble in its cadence. Even nature can take on an aspect of richness at times, or at least a certain coquetry, a daintiness not wholly free from suggestions of artificiality. The landscape in the midst of which Jerusalem lies is dreary, is said in scornful words to be almost forbidding. Yet it has a bare frankness that renders it dignified, a large simplicity that is very striking. The frame is sober, the picture within it is amazing, and neither, once seen, can ever be forgotten.—Robert Hichens in Century.

What Happened to Bill. Mrs. Dixon was putting Frank, aged six, and Willie, aged four, to sleep with a bedtime story when she was suddenly compelled to answer the doorbell. Hastening away with the intention of immediately returning, Mrs. Dixon was detained by a caller. The boys grew restless. Finally, running to the top of the stairs, where he knew his mother could get a perfect view of him, Frank used nearly all his small stock of diplomacy in trying to attract his mother's attention without disturbing the visitor. After several futile attempts at persuasion he called out in a loud whisper perfectly audible to both ladies below, "Mamma, you'd better come up," then in a most awe-inspiring tone adding, "cause Bill's nose is comin' unwiped!"—Youth's Companion.

Tibetan Penal Code. The Tibetan penal code is curious. Murder is punished with a fine varying according to the importance of the slain, theft by a fine of seven to one hundred times the value of the article stolen. Here, again, the fine depends on the social importance of the person from whom the theft has been committed. The harboring of a thief is looked upon as a worse criminal than the thief himself. Orders by fire and by boiling water are still used as proofs of innocence or guilt, exactly as was the custom in Europe in the middle ages. And if the laws never inflict death they are adepts at torture.

Taken Literally. The tramp approached the pompous gentleman and asked for a copper. "Go to the ant, thou sluggard," quoted the great.

"Taint no use, mister," answered the weary one. "Me ant's list is tight filled as me uncle and me other relatives."—Exchange.

The Boy Told Him. Father (after a long search)—Well, here it is. I wonder why one always finds a thing in the last place one hunts for it? Bright Boy—"I s'pose it's cause after people find it they leave off looking."

PIONEER BEGGAR DIES IN TUCSON

CARENO, BLIND AND DEPENDENT ON CHARITY PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF 75

TUCSON, June 3.—Mansel Carreno, almost a hand-mark of the city so familiar was he to Tucson people, died last night at the age of 75 years. Thirty-five years of that time he had spent in Tucson, and the nights of fifteen or twenty of those years since being stricken with blindness, he had spent in front of V. F. Kirt's store on the corner of Congress and Belmont streets, calling for alms from every passerby.

His plea delivered in a loud voice, ran in some such way as this: "Halle, Meester, hallo, hallo, Meester, Eeyah, Eeyah, Eeyah!" Probably more than half of the city's residents are so familiar with his peculiar cry that they could repeat it forward or backward.

Averse as the city administration is to the general principle of begging, city officials and policemen indulged Mansel because of his blindness and good nature and his evident need of charity.

There was one bright spot in his life, the days of the long ago when he could see, the days when he made a living selling hot tamales. Only a few of the older residents can remember that time. Even his son, now a married man, cannot remember his father's occupation before the blindness came upon him.

Older passersby, however, used to call "Hot Tamales" at him, and the old man would gleefully shout back the beloved words for ten minutes at a time.

For the past week he has been away from the street corner, and people surmised that he must be sick, for at no other time, unless the weather was quite forbidding, did he ever desert his post. Exposure and the infirmities of age caused his death last night.

Through all the years of his being, Mansel managed to support a wife, who is also blind, and a family of children. Friends who have seen him since leaving his family not entirely destitute.

SPENCE WILL HANG JUNE THIRTEENTH

PROBABLE THAT THE MURDERER'S EXECUTION WILL TAKE PLACE IN PRESCOTT

PRESCOTT, June 3.—Monday, June 13th, has been definitely set as the day on which Frank Spence will receive sentence of death, this announcement being made by Judge Doe a few days ago. Before that time the remitter from the Supreme Court will reach this district, and action taken to carry out the mandate of the higher court. Spence will be in all probability be executed to expiate his crime on the gallows in this city, and the place of execution will be at the customary enclosure on the east side of the court house, where several condemned men have been hung in past years.

Spence is said to be rapidly declining, and is passing through the severest test of his will power since being found guilty of the murder of Edgar Sullivan. He is also experiencing a physical shock that is telling on his shattered frame, and it is feared that after he receives his final word he may be affected to such a degree that it will lead to a collapse.
